ORACLE of the EGYPTIAN GODS

*The kingdom of heaven is within us,
and whoever knows himself/herself will find it.*

The box contains a deck of 36 cards with the most important and significant Egyptian deities. Each portrait card has been painted directly on original papyrus paper, produced with the ancient Egyptian drying method.

They are particularly powerful cards because they have the power to communicate directly with the interlocutor. Each god or goddess depicted on the cards bears a very precise message: wisdom, warning of danger, some advice or a protection, and helps us to rediscover our roots in the past, give meaning to our present situation and a structure for our future. It must be said, however, that the oracle can only help those who know themselves, their own fears, limitations and abilities, only those who are willing to take responsibility because “everyone is the architect of their own destiny”.

The Oracle

The oracle appears when one comes into contact with the deities, who are extremely powerful tools when they are invoked: they need to be respected, listened to and sometimes even feared. The wisest and most appropriate answers will reach us if we leave our hearts open and ready to listen.

The Egyptian settings are easily recognised for their aura of mystery.

The literal meaning of the word “god” in hieroglyphics (Neter) symbolises the instrument through which a force that is not directly visible manifests itself, revealing its nature through the occurrence of its effects. The oracle appears when the devotee (the interlocutor) comes into contact with the divinity, which thus reveals its own existence. Invoked or otherwise, the god is present.

The Egyptians surrounded themselves with many divinities: there are about 1500 known by name. Managing the gods was entrusted to clerics, consisting of priests and priestesses whose purpose through their sacred functions was to attract divine benevolence with respect to human affairs.

The Genesis

In the beginning there was chaos.

The spirit of the Creator lay asleep in the depths of the primordial waters, the cosmic energy of Nun (the male part) and Nunet (the female part). A small hill originated from them on which a phoenix landed, as Creator of the world: Ra, the Sun, "father of all gods"

Amon-Ra was born from the fusion of the god Ra with the main Theban deity, Amon. Holding his phallus in his hand, he scattered his seed giving life to the twins Shu, god of the air, and Tefnut, goddess of moisture. Nut, goddess of heaven and birth, and Geb, god of the earth were born from the twins. So much in love, Geb and Nut spent all their time embracing, preventing life from germinating. Amon-Ra then ordered Shu to separate them: he stepped on Geb and using his hands he lifted Nut away. She is always portrayed arched and with her hands and feet clinging to Geb. Geb and Nut gave birth to Osiris, god of the afterlife and fertilizing force, Isis, goddess of divine love and generating force, Seth, god of rain and storms, and Nefhti, sister goddess and help of Isis. An illegitimate child was born from Osiris and Nefhti: Anubis, god and keeper of the Kingdom of the Dead.

In this way, imitating the royal human organisations, the Ennead was born i.e., the group of nine deities that are at the basis of the Egyptian cosmogony consisting of Amon-Ra and four pairs of gods: Shu and Tefnut,

Geb and Nut, Osiris and Isis, Seth and Nefhti. There is also a Little Ennead, which consists of Anubis, Horus, god and lord of the heavens, Thot, god of knowledge and writing, and Maat, goddess of truth and justice that are in addition to, or sometimes as substitutes for, the previous ones.

Deities were often associated with local animals: the cow, whose milk was indispensable for human life and which assumed the role of mother of humankind, and the bull and the ram, which were associated with virile forces. The ox called Apis, which was very useful for all manner of work, was worshipped; also, the cat which exterminated the mice that infested Egypt, the monkey, the hippopotamus, the scorpion, the lion, the snake and the crocodile. The hawk, which flew high in the sky and observed the earth with its sharp eyes, became a natural symbol of the Sun and became so important and significant that after the 4th dynasty the Pharaoh was called "Son of Ra".

The Egyptian Pantheon is therefore the set of male and female anthro-zoomorphic deities which personify natural conditions, important events or concepts.

Ra · Enlightening

First sun god, “He who rises up, climbing high in the sky”. Life and prosperity come from the Sun and its heat. Its symbol is the Eye of Ra, also associated with the meaning of the “third eye”. The energy of Ra is vital, the source of creative growth. This deity instils clarity and transparency. There is nothing to fear under the influence of Ra: he helps you to heal wounds and restore lost harmony, but with action. Above all, he advises you to abandon the subterfuges of the Moon and to act boldly and in the full light of day.

2 Amon-Ra · Creation

He is the most powerful cosmic deity, as he is the king of all gods in the Egyptian Pantheon. He was born from the fusion of the god “Ra” of Heliopolis with the main Theban deity: “Amon”. Amon-Ra is the creator of all things. Symbol of intelligence and creativity, he is like fire, rapid and often unexpected. If this card appears to you, you have all the skills to obtain what you want: intellectual and practical skills for achieving your objectives. He indicates a flourishing period, skills in public relations, ideas and intentions which take concrete form; perhaps even a sudden falling in love, a new beginning or a love story that takes shape.

Shu · Order and Peace

Primordial God, son of Amon-Ra, who personifies the air, the wind but also the light that broke the primordial darkness. His name means "He who rises". Shu is commonly portrayed with an ostrich feather on his head. The ostrich feather is a symbol of lightness and purity: the air meaning breath of life and cooling breeze. This card advises you to adopt a more disciplined form of behaviour. Try to avoid uncontrolled impulses of desires and passions. The time has come to lighten and re-balance your life. Respect rules with greater responsibility.

4 Nut · Understanding

Goddess of the sky and celestial bodies. She swallows the setting sun and gives birth to it in the morning. Her immense naked body covered with stars is stretched out to form an arch that towers over the whole earth. Her arched position clearly shows her power in the sky and over the celestial objects. Her nakedness represents the purification of the soul. The stars that cover her symbolise the resurrection, the great light that illuminates. Your life is a mysterious journey. You have reached this point and Nut wants to help you to understand your purpose and your destiny. Press on with confidence because now you “know” that there will be favourable events on the horizon, and you might achieve your desired objectives.

Geb · Prosperity

God of the earth and all animals. He is usually depicted lying on the ground, with plants and fruit on his body, or as a bearded man with a goose on his head, the emblem representing the hieroglyph of his name. Geb symbolises wealth, fertility and abundance of nature, but also its most feared forces. With Geb you can trust in slow but constant development, such as the realization of a project or the conclusion of a program. You might experience extremely pleasant, tranquil and tender emotions, full of harmony and moral integrity.

Osiris · Death and Rebirth

He is the eldest son of Geb and Nut. He is often depicted as a mummy with black or green skin, which symbolises the vital spirit of the earth and vegetation. Osiris is a just, compassionate god: he is the god of suffering, victims and the oppressed, and as such he suffers with mortals. All the power of fertility and reproduction resides within him: the cycle of death and rebirth. He presages the end of a cycle, of a family relationship or friendship. Welcome a new situation with confidence, even if it is different from what you have experienced up to now. Abandon the old order. And always remember to be thankful for your life, day after day, whether it is good or bad. Only in this way will honour and luck be your companions.

Isis · Faith and Wisdom

Sister and wife of Osiris, she is compared to the Mother Goddess. Her name means “throne”; in fact, she is represented with a headdress in the shape of a throne. She is revered as the ideal mother and wife. She is the protectress of sinners and the oppressed, and the goddess of motherhood, fertility and Great Magic. As a conveyor of serenity in love, Isis invites you to reflect on the themes of faith, knowledge, fidelity, purity and silence. Learn to work on keeping secrets and trust in faith. By keeping secrets you learn to protect and to bear great responsibilities, such as the secret knowledge of the duality between the material universe and the spiritual universe.

8 Seth · Resentment

Seth is the one who, out of jealousy, dismembered his brother Osiris into fourteen parts, scattering them in the Nile to prevent their resurrection. He is identified as an evil deity and a bringer of chaos, desert, storms and disorder. He is depicted with a human body and the head of an enigmatic animal with a long curved snout that resembles that of an okapi. His name derives from “place”, “established” (by God). Seth puts you on your guard. You may experience unexpected accidents, moments of restlessness or resentment, conflicts or instability in emotional or commercial relationships. Moderate any attacks of uncontrolled anger. Remember: never resort to revenge in your life!

Horus · Stability and Equilibrium

He is represented as a hawk or a hawk-headed man. His name means “the distant one”: the falcon, with its majestic soaring and swooping in the sky. During a confrontation with the god Seth, Horus lost his left eye, which was then healed by the god Thot. The eye was given the name of the “Eye of Horus”. He embodies universal order and harmony. Put your trust in the god Horus, because everything will turn out fine, as with the albeit painful loss of false friends. On the physical plane, you will be wrapped in harmony. His presence advises you to show more awareness in the way you pay attention to your life. He helps you to transform all things from an inferior to superior level.

10 Nefhti · Meditation

Wife of Seth and younger sister of Isis, goddess of the underworld and of death in general. Her name means “Lady of the House”, which indicates that she is the Lady of the Temple, with reference to her priestly functions. She represents the access road to sanctuaries and the horizon. Nefhti protects humans and their souls in the moment of passing away. Obstacles, losses, or painful events may arise unexpectedly and irreversibly. Learn that through reflection everything can be fully transformed and developed. Your ability to continue to rise up depends only on your own conscience.

Anubis · Transformation

He is the protector of tombs, the embalmer of the dead, who accompanies souls into the afterlife to weigh their hearts and ferry them from the earthly world into the presence of Osiris. Anubis is portrayed as a jackal-headed man. He symbolises the renewal of life itself, rebirth and regeneration. You are about to end a cycle or you are already experiencing a new one: probable disappointments, collapse of affections, losses. Do not worry, Anubis will accompany you and guide you during the transformation of elements. Nothing will return to the way it was before, inevitably everything is transformed but all you can do is create a new life in a new form.

12 Thot · Wholeness

Human-shaped deity with the head of an ibis or in the form of a baboon, moon god, symbol of wisdom, “Lord of Time”. He is the protector of scribes and the inventor of writing, the god of magic, clairvoyance and laws. He assists Anubis in judging souls and reaching decisions on their fate. You are required to show self-discipline as this is the key to success in making progress. Learn how to use intelligent resources if you want to successfully complete certain enterprises. Learn to be whole and to reject immoral tendencies; be impartial in all the things you do, if you want to pursue a complete and just life.

Maat · Truth and Fairness

Goddess of harmony, justice and truth. She is usually depicted as a young woman with wings or holding the sceptre of power, a symbol of eternal life. She wears an ostrich feather on her head, a symbol of lightness. Maat also represents universal order. All existence moves on the basis of the principle of justice, interpreted as a law that must be observed. It is time for recovery and restoration. You may receive rewards for certain right actions but also punishments and consequences for wrong ones. Remember that happiness can only be achieved through fairness, righteousness and moderation.

14 Hator · Intelligence

She is the Mother of all women. She is the goddess of love, passion and beauty: her parties are orgies of intoxication, joy and music. She is also associated with childbirth, delivery and children. She is portrayed as a young woman with cow horns on her head; the sun disc is placed between the horns which is why she is also called the "Divine Cow". But she also has a destructive side. Try to create pleasant situations, and make the most of the moments you experience. In love, Hator helps to intensify sexuality, the senses, the explosion of life, of everything capable of being born. Increase of wealth in all areas, especially material ones.

15 Ptah · Skill

God and patron of craftsmen and architects as well as of knowledge and know-how. He is an engineer, bricklayer, blacksmith and artist. He is depicted as a mummified man with a beard, holding the Ankh sceptre, the symbol of life, and the Djed staff of power, a symbol of stability. Ptah provides you with the state of effortless concentration. Bringing you lightness and familiar skill, he will make it easy for you to perform all manner of operations. Under his influence and through serene objectivity, you have the chance to transform your work into play and develop the power of mental development, the ability to transform things or the capacity to awaken passions but also to dominate them.

16 Bastet · Passion

Cat-headed female deity or portrayed as a black cat. Sun goddess, she personifies the beneficial heat of the sun. Protectress of the house and cats. Goddess of prosperity and wealth. She represents sensuality and tenderness, charm and generosity, love and passion, desire and pleasure. Maybe you should take a break from your routine and reconnect with nature and with yourself. Live your life with more fullness and passion. It lies within your ability to develop seduction and passion. You could get great satisfaction in any area of your life and experience moments full of joy and satisfaction.

Sekhmet · Justice

Lioness-headed female goddess with a sun disc on her head. Sekhmet is the divinity of war, epidemics but also the protectress of forms of healing. She is the expression of the duality between disease and healing, chaos and order, water and fire, the two elements from which matter and spirit are obtained. Sekhmet brings order and punishes those who disobey divine law. You have the opportunity to reconcile the opposing energies. Remember that all the chickens come home to roost. Every person must experience the consequences of their actions, for better or for worse. Every action or thought generates a consequence. Proceed more calmly and patiently. Avoid extremes. Be your own magician, balance your will and your goals. Be just and be fair. Learn to judge and criticise constructively, without hurting others.

18 Khepri · Change

God of the Sun's daily rebirth and of cyclical renewal. Represented by a scarab, Khepri is black as darkness, the beginning of all things. He symbolises the transformation of humans in their stages: life-death-rebirth, the victory of light over darkness, of life over death, the becoming, the generative power symbol of rebirth. His appearance might announce the end of a cycle, a breakdown, disappointments or the wrecking of affections. But everything is constantly changing, like day and night, and Khepri encourages you to get up every day with the light of faith and hope because after the night a new day always dawns.

Mut · Being Ordinary

Her name means “mother”. She is depicted as a woman wearing a golden headdress in the likeness of a vulture. Mut is the mother of all things, and is associated with the primordial waters of the God Nun, from whom everything in the world was born. She symbolises permanent creation. She establishes the conservation of things. Mut will offer you her necessary presence if you put your whole heart into working to give benefit and advantage to your home and your family. You will only facilitate the production and increase of wealth, especially material goods, by maintaining respectful and regular behaviour on a daily basis, through enthusiasm and dedication.

Khonsu · Hermitage

God of the moon, time and knowledge. His name means “traveller”, “the wanderer”. Khonsu is the admiral of human destinies. He is depicted as a mummified young child. He represents the synthesis of the beauty of youth, the archetype of youthful amazement and spontaneity. Like other child deities, he symbolises the potential that lies in all of us. Be open to new ideas and be brave and bold in facing up to the unknown that presents itself to you. Possibility of journeys that take you away from your “comfort zone”. In love you may experience new favourable beginnings.

Khnum · Resourcefulness

He is often represented with a human body and the head of a ram. He is considered the divine maker of pots: he gives life to his creations by modelling them on a lathe with clay from the Nile; he also shaped the egg of creation. He is a deity associated with male fertility and procreative potency, fire, inherent in the symbol of the ram. In breathing new life into things, Khnum is seen as a health giver. New, positive beginnings or the birth of something powerful and inspiring in your life, lie on the horizon for you, such as the creation and production of new things. Action and resourcefulness under the influence of Khnum are bearers of fruits.

Anuket · Hope

She is depicted as a woman with a high headdress made of reeds or ostrich feathers; more rarely she is represented in the form of a gazelle. Being the goddess of the Nile, she is linked to its floods, which bring nourishment, fertility and prosperity to the earth. This is where she gets her name: “She who surrounds”, that is, her invasion of the lands that embrace every being to bring fertility and happiness. She represents the generosity that gives rise to life. Trust in the protection of Anuket who will guide you and bolster your courage, who gives you intensity and hope, even when renunciations and sacrifices arise. Remember that hope is in the heart of the optimist.

Sobek · Union and Power

This is an ambivalent divinity, both malignant and benign. His ferocity is able to ward off evil and at the same time defend the innocent. His name derives from “unite” (the dismembered limbs of Osiris). Sobek is usually portrayed as a crocodile or a crocodile-headed man. He heals the souls who were wounded or killed in battle, restoring their health, sight and all their senses. He represents the authority of decision-making power and action and the implementation of projects. Under the influence of Sobek, you have a sound base on which to build large business-like enterprises. Do not stop: your effort will bear fruit and allow you to gain power.

Taweret · Genesis

She is the Great Protectress of pregnant women and children, who is vigilant even in her sleep. Goddess depicted with the features of a pregnant hippo with human breasts, standing on two legs and with a crocodile's tail on her back. She is considered the mother of the Sun and collaborates in his daily rebirth, as well as helping the deceased to be reborn to a new life. She symbolises everything that leads to the generation of things and their appearance. You could start some new projects or have news on the way. The birth of something new. The arrival of a new life or the beginning of a relationship in your life, both in the beginning phase and in the sense of a bond that is welded, such as a marriage.

Hapy · Renewal

He represents the liquid and turbulent element. He symbolises the fertility of the land, the abundance of crops and life renewed by the annual flood of the River Nile which brings fauna and vegetation: “The Lord of fish, birds and swamps”. Hapy is portrayed as a man with a large belly and large female breasts, a symbol of fertility. Follow the divine light along the direction of passions. It is time to fully experience everything the world has to offer you. Go with the flow and live more intensely! Hapy heralds a renewal, a new life and new paths to go down. You could acquire imminent fortune in the field of trade.

Neith · Perseverance

A unique, great and mysterious divinity. Mother of the Universe, of the Sun Ra, conceived while remaining a virgin. Warrior and hunting goddess, creator of warrior weapons and guardian of the dead in battle, but also protectress of peace at home, of weaving, a deity that wove the whole world and existence. She represents determination, challenges, intelligence and knowledge of the truth. Neith guides you in achieving a goal. Do not give up hope. Neith urges you to persevere. She will protect you if put your heart into working hard and intelligently.

Satet · Fruitfulness

She is depicted as a woman with the crown of Upper Egypt with two gazelle horns on top. Her name derives from “She who pours”, which symbolises the floods of the River Nile, or “She who runs like an arrow”, that is the current of the flowing river; in fact she represents natural forces and phenomena. As goddess of fertility, she could signal to you the successful start of a new project, or a new job. If you are in search of love, Satet can help you and answer your wishes. If you are already in a relationship, she can bring you stability or even marriage, because she protects new projects.

Huh · Exploration

He is represented with his arms raised with a palm branch in each hand and a smaller one as a headdress. He is called the “god of millions of years”, because he is the personification of infinity or eternity: with respect to the deceased, he grants “millions of years in the afterlife”. He symbolises individuality and the desire for inner searching. If you are going through a moment of profound crisis, have faith, take things as they are and take your time. You are destined to evolve. It will be a slow, profound movement, which needs time for you and the circumstances to reach maturity. Slowness advises you to be prudent, reserved, discreet and patient and have a sense of duty.

Heka · Alchemical Force

Heka is the god of magic, and also of healing medicine. The universe was created thanks to magic, and life also depends on it. He is a god who has no origins. His name means “the first work”. Heka reveals himself in the feelings of human beings and expresses himself in their language. He offers determination in order to dominate and the capacity to create. The alchemist purifies base and raw materials to turn them into gold. Giving you vitality, energy, magnetism and strength at all levels, he allows you to successfully develop your accomplishments. He has appeared to you to give you the ability to control in any direction or to dominate all the elements.

30 Ammut · Devastation

God of hell and the afterlife. Hybrid figure of a lion, crocodile and hippopotamus, which devours the souls and hearts of those who made mistakes in life: excessive pride, presumption, greed, eagerness for conquest. Ammut represents the consequences of past mistakes. You may have to face a drastic change, with the elimination of the lifestyle you were used to, or a crisis with your partner or a painful breakup with the consequent collapse of your defences. But everything can be resolved if you reflect as soon as possible on the solutions to bring about a positive change. You can give rise to a totally new recovery. Change your perspective, and take up new positions.

31 Seshat · Wisdom

Her name means “the scribe”. Deity - teacher of arithmetic, astronomy, astrology and architecture. She is depicted dressed in a priestly leopard skin and with a banner on her head supporting a seven-pointed star. She is the patroness of scribes and builders and is the most cultured of the Egyptian divinities. She symbolises the manifestation of intelligence. Seshat reveals herself to you to illuminate your path of knowledge on the mental plane. Her presence strengthens your courage, sharpness and hope. Although you may have to endure sacrifices and renunciations, go forward and trust in her profound knowledge.

Mertseger · Righteousness

Her name means “She who loves silence”. More often depicted as a snake with a woman’s head, it is a presence that watches silently and punishes evildoers with poison. Divinity of a terrible nature but merciful with her devotees: she punishes sacrilege and those who break an oath, but is equally generous in forgiving those who are sincerely repentant. She symbolises authority and intelligence, key words for a full and peaceful life. Mertseger puts you on your guard against a few people you do not know well, who might bring cruelty, malice, deceit and conflict. Scrutinise in silence and stay alert.

Selkis · Healing

Divinity of magic and occult powers. She is depicted as a woman with a scorpion on her head, her symbol. She possesses absolute power over all poisonous creatures, because she represents the poison and the antidote at the same time, just like them. Like the scorpion, she is the sign of death and rebirth, “She who gives the kiss of death and the breath of new life”. You need to cross the threshold in order to come to a new life. Selkis invites you to recognize and accept your dual (benign and malignant) nature. Learn to control your poisonous side, giving space to that part of you that has the capacity to heal.

Apophis · Darkness

He is depicted as a gigantic python that dwells in the bowels of the earth where the sunlight does not filter through. Apophis is the embodiment of darkness, evil and Chaos. Dark enemy of the Sun god Ra, bearer of light; he comes into action in all the stages of Ra's celestial journey in order to obstruct him, from dawn to dusk. But the existence of Apophis is necessary for the balance of the world itself: the ancestral clash between Good and Evil, the struggle between two opposing energies with the risk of a no return. Apophis threatens your balance. If you live in blindness, the path you take is opposite to that which is right. Immediately reverse your course and empty yourself so as to become a recipient of forces, before reaching the point of no return!

35
Mehen · Protection

He is a beneficial serpent-god, the guardian of the solar barque of Ra, whose name means “he who is coiled”. The sacred Mehen shields the god Ra during his journeys on the solar barque protecting him from the evil serpent Apophis. He carefully protects Ra’s journey also to allow him to be reborn at every sunrise and defeat death. It is envisaged that a time of conflict is on its way to you. You will have to fight, be alert to maintain your position, but do not fear: Mehen’s powerful energy ensures you great protection against external attacks and to come out victorious and relieved.

Nefertum · Completeness

His name means “Perfect, without equal”. He is the god of perfumes who relieves suffering and also the god of immortality. He is represented as a young boy dressed in a simple skirt with a lotus flower on his head, a symbol of birth and regeneration, and for this reason he is the deity of “sweet smells”. He represents the complete fusion with the universe, the ultimate success, the completeness, triumph in initiatives, the fullness of one’s own energies. Follow the heavenly directions and you will have the right reward and the right place in a higher spiritual hierarchy. Remember that the initiate is the one who carries the seed of Light within him.
